

NAMED COMMITTEES ON APPORTIONMENT

JOINT COMMITTEE THAT WILL REMAP THE STATE DISTRICTS POLITICALLY.

WILL DIVIDE COUNTIES

Bell of Racine For the First Congressional District Is Named.—County Will Be Affected.

Madison, Wis., May 21.—Announcement was made in the legislature today of the personnel of the special joint committee to handle the problem of reapportionment in this state—a task involving great political significance. Five members will represent the senate, and eleven (one from each congressional district) will act for the assembly. The appointments were made for the senate by Senator H. G. Martin, president pro tem, and for the assembly by Speaker Charles A. Linn. The committee is:

For the Senate: Senators John C. Kleckler, Milwaukee; Henry Krumrey, Plymouth; Walter C. Owen, Madison; John M. True, Racine; S. W. Randolph, Manitowish.

For the Assembly: First district, William H. Bell, Racine (chairman of the committee); second, Dr. C. A. Harper, Madison; third, Judge A. H. Long, Prairie du Chien; fourth, Clarence W. Yockey, Milwaukee; fifth, Max E. Blumer, Milwaukee; sixth, Charles Pickett, Manitowish; seventh, Judge J. C. Gilbertson, Eau Claire; eighth, R. L. Clark, Oshkosh; ninth, C. J. Johnson, Marinette; tenth, E. L. Urquhart, Meadford; eleventh, R. J. Nye, Superior.

Senator Randolph is the only democrat of the senate representation. On the assembly side, Judge Long and Charles Pickett are democrats; Blumer is a social democrat, and the rest are republicans. The various sections of the state have been recognized according to their representation in congress except the ninth, where the present congressmen, Thomas Kono, secured his election by a majority and which is strongly republican. This district is represented in the assembly by six republicans and three democrats and is normally republican. Both the third and tenth districts have a heavier democratic representation than the ninth, having four democrats in the assembly in view of this situation the speaker felt warranted in selecting the second democratic member from the third district instead of from the ninth. The other democratic member, Assemblyman Pickett, is from a practically solid democratic district (the sixth). It has but one republican in the assembly. In Pickett's favor, also, there is recorded his long service in the assembly, his high standing and general ability as a member. In the selection of Messrs. Pickett and Randolph the democrats are said to be generally well pleased.

The chairman of the committee, Mr. Bell, is equipped by experience for his important duties. He is serving his fourth term in the assembly. He is the author of the resolution providing for a reapportionment committee. Dr. Harper, serving his first term, has developed into one of the assembly's most influential members. Judge Long, a democrat, but with whom party lines are practically unknown in his legislative efforts, is one of the big men of the session and perhaps the most influential democrat on the floor. Mr. Yockey, who came to the legislature chosen as a reactionary, has developed into a conscientious, hardworking member, who has stood, it is generally agreed, for desirable legislation. In view of this latter fact, in part, he was recognized by the speaker in making up this committee.

Max E. Blumer, social democrat, is known as a competent bookkeeper and mathematician, whose expertise in this regard has been particularly for work on the committee. Assemblyman Gilbertson is recognized as a ready and efficient legislator. He is a member of the legislature for the first time, and is a speaker and legislator of great force of character. Assemblyman Clark, now serving his first term, is a young man, an attorney by profession, who is fast showing qualities of leadership in the opinion of those who have watched his course in the assembly; and who has a keen understanding of affairs. Assemblyman C. J. Johnson has been a substantial and hardworking member. Assemblyman Urquhart originally was chosen among the standstillers, but as the session advanced he is shown to have stood for reasonable progressive legislation.

Assemblyman Nye, for the eleventh district, undoubtedly one of the strongest men in the house, will represent the northernmost counties.

In choosing the committee it is apparent the strongest men possible were named, recognition being given also in the difficulty in selecting from a group of evenly able members from the same district, as was necessary in several instances.

A slight change was made in the rules of the run, which will make it impossible to handle a driver on the "double penalization" plan. The pitching staff for Beloit will be Lieve, Swanson, and Reynolds, and Jack Hall will catch. Peterson, Smith, or Butters, all capable mound artists, will probably do the twirling for Janesville, with Crutan at the receiving end. ## CLOSES ALL DOORS AND TURNS ON GAS

WORRY WAS CAUSE

Sits in Chair in Summer Kitchen With Gas Stove Turned on and All Cracks in Doors and Windows Stuffed.

Turning on all six jets of the gas stove in the summer kitchen at the rear of the home of his sister, Mrs. Mattie Parker, 1116 Olive street, and sealing himself in a chair in one corner of the room after having stuffed the cracks in the door with pieces of carpet, Charles Andrews, aged fifty, committed suicide this morning about six o'clock.

Andrews rose about 5:30 and told his sister that it was early and that she need not get up. Apparently he went directly to the back of the house where he prepared to take his own life, for upon arising about half an hour later, Mrs. Parker smelled gas and summoned the neighbors.

George Woodruff, who lives at 1102 Olive street, answered her calls and bursting in the rear door found the lifeless body of Andrews with arms folded, in the chair.

It is said that worry over the fact that he could not bring about a reconciliation with his wife, from whom he was divorced about one year ago, and business matters, had made him despondent and for the past three weeks he had repeatedly declared his intention of taking his own life. The suicide came as a shock, however, as he was at work all day yesterday and seemed even in better spirits than usual.

Andrews was employed as a plumber for McVicar Brothers and had been in their employ for nineteen years. He married some time ago, but the union seemed to have proved a failure, as the two were unable to get along together. The turning point in the life of the unfortunate man came about a year ago, when his wife sued for divorce and the separation took place.

Since that time he has been in the habit of undergoing periods of depression and it is said that on several occasions before he had been saved from taking his own life only by the timely intervention of friends.

While engaged in doing some plumbing in the Second ward about three weeks ago, he was brought face to face with his former wife and a scene was created in which she went into hysterics and the efforts of friends to effect a reconciliation were fruitless. This episode seemed to have left Andrews in a worse state than before, the fact that it was his wife that had sought the separation and that he was unable to ever get her to come back to him, constantly bearing on his mind until he could not stand it any longer.

When approached on the subject, following a declared intention of suicide, about six weeks ago, he said that he would be all right if he could only "get those foolish ideas out of his head." His friends are of the opinion that the suicide followed a night of worry and restlessness which was the culmination of his trouble.

About six weeks ago the police were notified by phone by his sister, Mrs. Parker, that he was on his way to the cemetery armed with a revolver, and that he had said that he was going to kill himself. Several of his friends jumped into a car and started out on the road that Andrews had taken. When they reached the cemetery he was just coming out and seemed to be perfectly rational. The men in the buggy spoke to him and drove on and the incident passed without further notice. Since that time he has been a source of constant worry to his sister, with whom he lived. She lies at her home this afternoon, prostrated by the shock of the affair. The death of his brother about three weeks ago and also some poor mine investments in the west, are said to have contributed to making him despondent.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Andrews, were well known here and were among the pioneer residents of the city. The unfortunate man had been in the employ of McVicar Brothers for about nineteen years in the capacity of steam fitter. At one time he was engaged in business with John McVicar.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Fishing vs. Politics. Milwaukee Journal: Now is the time when political principles can just go hang while we take a strenuous dip in the world of fishy politics and jockey in the pleasure spot where the fish are supposed to bite.

A Thing of Yesterday. Milwaukee Journal: Between the lawn mower, the clanging of the vacuum cleaner, the beating of the carpets, in say nothing of the ringing of bells, rattling of whistles and rattle of the milk wagons the morning slumber is a myth of hygienic days.

After the Weather Man. Sheboygan Journal: So many U. S. weather department predictions are wrong that the house of representatives is going to investigate the entire weather bureau. It would seem to the average citizen that the country ought to get more than an occasional correct guess in return for the million or so dollars the bureau costs.

MILTON JUNCTION CASE DISMISSED

Charges Against Sam and Ella Gothompson of Receiving Stolen Goods Dropped Today.

Charges of receiving stolen goods against Sam Gothompson and Ella Gothompson of Milton Junction were dismissed in municipal court this morning by Judge Fife on motion of the District Attorney, who explained the cause for dismissal. The Gothompsons, who are in charge of the St. Paul hotel at the Junction, accepted, cream from Henry Burgess, who told them that the man for whom he was working had had some left over and sent it to them. The defendants in the case, it was stated, had questioned the boy about it, but the youth had told a plausible story and they did not investigate further. They admitted, however, their carelessness in not doing so and the fact that they had questioned the boy was attested to in an affidavit signed by Cassie Gray, Attorney John L. Fisher, who appeared for the defendants, asked that Mr. Dunwiddie's motion be accepted and said that his clients wished to be fair and that Mr. Gothompson had left with him $20 with which to reimburse the man from whom the cream was alleged to have been stolen. As they had received cream from young Burgess but fifteen times, he said this was an excessive value of the cream, but Mr. Gothompson wanted to do the right thing. The warrant for the arrest of the Gothompsons was sworn out after examining Burgess.

RUNAWAY BOY FROM CREAM CITY HERE

Frank Krause, Who Left Home on Saturday, Taken Back to Cream City by His Mother Today.

Janesville seems to be the mecca for runaway children of late, the third within a week being detained at the police station over night until the arrival of his mother. Frank Krause of Milwaukee, son of a policeman there, was picked up by officers last night about midnight and put in the women's cell. This morning Chief of Police Appleby telephoned to the chief of police at Milwaukee and the parents of the boy were notified. The boy's mother arrived from the Cream City this afternoon and took him back home.

Krause gave his age as sixteen years old, but appears to be about eleven. He left home on Saturday. He told Chief Appleby this morning that he left home to get work in the country and that his parents knew of his intentions, but on closer questioning admitted he had run away.

UNUSUAL ACTION IN GREEN COUNTY CASE

Judge Grimm Pronounces Sentence on Harry Jacobson and Writes State Board To Parole Him.

Deeming that the man had never had a chance to prove that he could be good, Judge Grimm yesterday gave Harry Jacobson, brought before him here in a special term of the Green county circuit court, charged with forgery, the minimum sentence of one year at Waupun and immediately wrote to the state board of pardons recommending his parole at once. For the last seven years Jacobson has been imprisoned and again each term following close on the other and all for crimes committed before his first imprisonment.

In telling the story of his experiences to the court, following his plea of guilty he said that seven years ago he was apprehended in Monroe on a forgery charge and that he was wanted at the same time in Buffalo. He broke jail and was taken at Memphis, where he was again imprisoned. After his release from the jail there he was taken in New York and again served a prison term. He showed the court letters from the several warden's vouching for his good behavior while in prison.

It was the intention of the judge to sentence the man and then suspend the sentence, but it was not allowable in a case where a man had been sentenced before. So the judge and warden tried scheme put into practice by Judge Grimm and the minimum sentence was imposed. If the board of pardons sees fit to parole the prisoner, it will be done immediately and the man will be practically freed.

Another Green county case that was brought before Judge Grimm yesterday afternoon was that of August Kurth, a sixteen year old lad charged with horse stealing. The boy pleaded guilty and was given a good talk by the judge and two months in the Green county jail.

The case was dismissed in which George Lyons, former paymaster of the coast of America was seeking $500 alleged to be due him for wages from the town. In the Green county cases District Attorney McGrath of Green county appeared for the state and the prisoners were brought to this city on the 4:45 train by Sheriff Solbra.

EDWARD WILSON ON MADISON ROAD IS THOUGHT INSANE

Following a preliminary examination by physicians which is scheduled to take place today, the sanity of Edward Wilson, who resides on a farm north of this city, will be tested. Complaint has been brought to the authorities by several of his neighbors and in the complaint it is alleged that he is cruel in his treatment of the cattle and horses about the farm and that he is also abusive to his family.

The case will go from the doctors to the county court where if the doctors adjudge the man insane and he desires to appeal it a jury of six will be drawn and the case thrashed out there.

Recently he was seen to be carrying a gun about with him and it was alleged that he was in the act of intimidating his family, but the man says that he was merely hunting gophers. Those who have brought the complaint are Alvah Maxfield, Frank Fischer and William Kennedy.

THE THEATER

"THE GIRL FROM U. S. A."

"The Girl From U. S. A." which appears at the Myers Theater Saturday, May 27, matinee and evening, is said to be a literary invention. It makes everybody sit up and take notice, though showing in its evolution the social life of the present, in its two most striking phases. It is so vividly American in sentiment, so vigorously clever in dialogue, and astonishingly true to types and characters, that no one ever thinks that any of its exciting incidents are other than the natural events of real life portrayed so strikingly. Of course it is a love story. A story of hate also—with its twin revenges; of unlawful desire and lawful triumph. And it shows in vivid gleams the complicated politics of other lands, and the close relationship of our own government with the one Free Press on earth, whose mighty voice controls the world, and decides the fate of individuals and nations.

Docketator's Past. "I see," said the old timer, "that Lew Docketator and his minister troupe are coming to town. I haven't seen a show in a year, but I will certainly have to see Lew for old times sake."

"Do you know him? Well, some."

"I know him very well when I lived in Meridian, Conn. Why in thunder he picked out a name like Docketator I don't know, but changing his name hasn't changed him much. Maybe he changed it because Docketator is a tanner name. That's not bad, is it?"

"Yes, he was Lew Clapp. He worked as a young fellow at the Wilcox Silver Plate Factory and boarded with the Mathways. A more gentle, mild-mannered lad you never saw. Little did we think that he'd become as low as a minister man. Such a good boy as he was. Never missed a Sunday school session. Never went to shows—wouldn't even turn out to see a parade of boyhood. Why we all thought Lew would eventually quit the show and study theology—or Socialism; he seemed to be cut out for the ministry. Laws, how he did hate him! Never let up in his efforts to put it down. So honest, too. If he found a cent on the floor, he'd hunt all through the shop for an owner. And truthful! He had George Washington skinned a mile in that respect. And neat! His red hair was always most carefully combed and a cleaner nose you never saw. Of a Sunday as he came trotting down old Colony street he was pointed out as a model for all the other boys. Oh, Lew was a mother's darling in those days."

"The old man growl said. 'Then' he resumed, 'a great change came over Lew after he left Meridian and went to Hartford. It was there he got into the show business and soon he went to the bad entirely. What a fall was his! I saw him once up there wearing a plug hat, a yellow vest, short coat and tight pants, and with a cigarette between his lips, and he was actually drinking beer! And he wore diamonds and could spit through his fingers. Since then he has gone from bad to worse, and now he has a ministerial show of his own. It ought to be a warning to all boys back home in Meridian—to avoid Hartford." Mr. Lew Docketator and his great minister troupe will be the closing attraction at Myers Theater Monday, May 29.

AN OLD REMEDY

Beef, Iron and Wine is one of the good old remedies that has outlived a score of patent tonics, reasonable in price, a satisfactory tonic, appetizer and mild stimulant. There is nothing better for that tired, worried, listless feeling or run-down condition of the system after illness of any kind. It tones the whole system, stimulates digestion, gives you appetite, is a good iron tonic for weak, pale children or old people, far more effective than malt extracts or so-called wine of cod liver oil that depend upon their stimulants alone. Beef, Iron and Wine tones and sustains, it assists nature to recuperate, it's a food to the sick and nursing mothers.

Mr. Pfennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, prepares our Beef, Iron and Wine. It's always fresh, made from the very best extract of beef, wholesome, properly aged sherry wine and soluble iron.

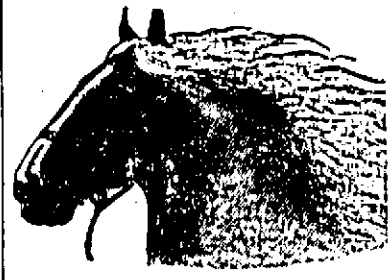

We don't sell ready-made, hand-made, factory-manufactured—Beef, Iron and Wine. We believe and know that medicine should be compounded only by the experienced and scientifically trained.

Try a bottle of our Beef, Iron and Wine as made by Mr. Pfennig, 75c a full pint. Note its wholesome taste and invigorating effect. You will be more than satisfied. Get it at the Indeger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River St. The drug store that makes a specialty of drugs.

The Shade Made by the VUDOR Shade

By Charles Patterson

All Shades of people are shaded by the shade of the VUDOR Shade. There are other shades besides the VUDOR shade—the Sun Shade, the light shade, the dark shade and the "Shade of the old apple tree," but no shade makes the Shade that is made by the VUDOR Shade.

There is nothing shady in the make of the VUDOR Shade except the shade made by the VUDOR Shade. If you want to keep shady always get in the shade of the VUDOR Shade. The VUDOR Shade is the young folks shade; and the shade of the young folks shade oftentimes keeps the old folks in the shade.

There is no shading of the price of the VUDOR Shade. The VUDOR Shade is made in many shades, but the shade is the same in all shades.

The VUDOR Shade is the new shade, and the Shade made by the VUDOR Shade is the newest shade made. J. M. Bostwick & Sons will put you in any shade of the VUDOR Shade, and guarantee the shade to be the right shade. If you've been in the shade of an old shade get in the shade of the new shade, and that, the VUDOR Shade made by the HOUGH SHADE CORPORATION. . . . .

What About Your Wife?

Every business man recognizes the comfort, the necessity, the convenience and the delight of an electric fan, and most every business man has one or more in his office, store or factory.

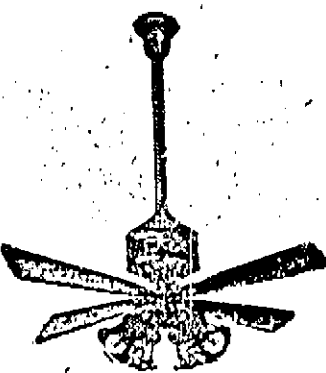

Yet the wife at home must bear the inconveniences of a heated kitchen without an Electric Fan.

Of course you really intend to get one for the home.

But You Forget To Get It?

An electric fan keeps your bed room cool and comfortable on the hottest night. It is ready with a refreshing breeze in any room at any hour—at just a turn of the switch. The 8 inch size, big enough for the average home—uses only one-third the current consumed by one standard incandescent lamp. Ask our ventilating fan man to call today.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

IN ANSWER to my appeal for suggestions as to ways in which a college girl could earn money during the summer vacation and yet not undermine her health, several interesting ideas have been sent in.

One occupation suggested is that of companion to blind people. By applying at institutions for the blind, positions of this sort may sometimes be obtained.

Another possibility is that the college girl might get an opportunity to care for and live in a house where people are away for the summer. The subscriber who sent in this suggestion says she knows a mother and daughter who always find this work to do through the summer through their church affiliations.

Another woman says: "Just this morning I received a communication from a large publishing house to act as their traveling agent at $15.00 a week and expenses, but as I am a mother and a housewife, my duties are at home. Now, it seemed to me that to an energetic college girl this travel would give the needed rest, and also be remunerative. I shall probably take up the work at home on a smaller scale, as it is a work my heart is in, but I would be glad to put some one in the way of obtaining this place, as I suppose there are many just such chances."

For a college girl who does not have to earn much money, but who cannot exactly afford to lay out money in going away for the vacation, the following suggestion might be of use. I say "for a girl who does not need to earn much money," because I suppose a good part of her earnings would be eaten up by fares.

"I will tell you what I learned at Yellowstone Park two years ago this summer. The help the government hires is nearly all college help. The mother of one of the camps was a teacher from a Pennsylvania college, and she brought two of the college girls with her. They made the beds and took care of the tents—were there at eleven and had the rest of the day to go over the interesting parts of the camp. They were allowed to transfer from one camp to another. In this way they visited all the points of interest. The lady help is paid from $30 a month and board up. For particulars write Wylie Camp, Gardiner, Yellowstone Park."

"Mother's Helper," is another position which a reader thinks college girls might fill during the summer to their own and other people's profit.

"It isn't easy," she says, "for many of us mothers to get good servants—in fact, it isn't always easy to get any. Now, I believe that a girl who would be willing to do anything that came to hand (I will except the weekly washing and ironing. That would be asking too much), and whose pride would not prevent her from waiting on table when necessary, etc., will have no trouble in finding a good home for the summer, and will be able to go back to her studies much improved in health and pocketbook."

"Of course, there are many college girls whose pride would not let them do this, but they make me think of the small boy who climbs a tree and then calmly yells, 'help, help.'"

MOTHER'S CORNER

BY JULIA CHANDLER.

"All that I am, or ever hope to be, I owe to my Mother."
—Abraham Lincoln.

THE CAPTAIN.

WELL, I hear Edythe failed on her Latin," said The Gossip, with a rising inflection.

If she had hoped to surprise the Bradley mother by thus informing her abruptly of her daughter's failure in her examination, she was certainly disappointed.

"Then she'll have to start again, and the work of this semester will help in the success of the next," the Bradley mother answered The Gossip, in a cheerful tone.

Just then the girl in question joined the two women on the vine-covered porch. Edythe's face had not yet rounded out from a recent long illness, and certainly the hard struggle to make up the lost work of school had not helped to replenish her vitality.

The Gossip tilted under the girl's cool regard, but the Bradley mother went right on as though the conversation had not been interrupted by Edythe herself.

"You see," she said, "life is a broad domain, traversed by many rivers. Some of these rivers are wide and deep and swift and not easily crossed. Some of us only get a good drenching in our first effort to swim them, but there is one point that is very sure."

"WE SIT DOWN ON THE BANK IN THE SUNSHINE, WATCHING THE RIVER MOURNFULLY, PITYING OURSELVES THAT THE WATER IS COLD AND THE CURRENT SWIFT WE WILL NEVER GET TO THE OTHER SIDE."

"THE ONLY WAY TO CROSS THE RIVERS OF LIFE IS TO STRIKE OUT AND SWIM ACROSS."

"If you can make Edythe believe that you will do very well," smiled The Gossip skeptically.

She was plainly disappointed that she had not been able to surprise the hurt pride of the Bradley mother to the surface, and equally so that Edythe had shown no tendency to offer excuses for her failure.

But when The Gossip had gone it was not so easy for the girl to hide her bitter disappointment.

"I was the only one in the class who failed, mother," she sobbed.

"There were once two opposing armies," said the mother of Edythe Bradley, with apparent irrelevance. "The one had lived in winter quarters, suffering no keen hardships. It was well fed and well clothed. The other army was depleted in number, starved in body, but holding fast to the Cause for which it fought. The day of the great fight the soldiers of the smaller army went forth barefoot into battle. They fought a valiant fight, but went down almost to a man. Were they any the less brave and good soldiers because they lost the battle? Was their courage any the less glorious because they were not victors in the fight?"

"I am ashamed to tell you now, mother, that I had almost thought of giving up Latin," confessed the girl.

"I know that temptation would come to you. That is why I told you the story of the soldiers," said the mother gently.

"Oh, with a mother like you for Captain, a soldier could go into any battle," cried the girl, happiness crowding back into her confident voice.

"We will strike out with stronger strokes and swim the river together," whispered the woman as she patted the young arms that were about her neck and gave back kisses for kisses.

The Gossip heard the older laugh mingled with the younger as she passed the gate, and looked toward the Bradley porch disapprovingly.

"Humph! They don't seem to mind it," she sniffed.

WHAT WILL IT PROFIT YOU?

That is the question each of us must ask when faced to face with any new problem or condition. What will it profit? Not always in dollars and cents, but in addition to character or in satisfaction of accomplishment.

There are more important things in the world than money. There are more important things than a big name. One of the chief is the satisfaction of knowing one tried to do right.

Old Plautus said that "There are occasions when it is undoubtedly better to incur loss than to make gain."

And Plautus, like most of the philosophers, is right.

There are times when a man better incur loss in a big business deal than to make gain. There are times when a man had better lose entirely the advantage of a big deal than to gain by it.

Whatever causes a man to put his own self-respect in jeopardy had better be left undone. Whatever is inclined to make a man think less of himself should not be accomplished. Better failure than any compromise with honesty. Better failure than a justification of conscience.

The moment we lose our self-respect that moment we have started in the wrong direction. Whatever makes man or woman think less of themselves is an accusing net and unworthy the reasoning human being.

Whatever we get out of this life is the result of what we put in it. The rewards that come to us are the result of an accumulation of honest endeavors. Whatever of sorrows we must take care of our own creating.

Frequently we try to deny the child that comes to us, but it bears all the marks and characteristics to identify it with us and so our disclaimer is worthless.

The man who thinks he can abuse his privileges as a man and go free of punishment is only deceiving himself. The woman who thinks she can abuse her privileges as a woman and not be called upon to pay the penalty is fooling herself. Both must come to the accounting some time or other.

The severest judges any of us will ever have will be our own consciences. But conscience not only sits in judgment, but it also acts as executioner and sets to work upon us all the sorrows of dissatisfaction, repentance and regret that sting us in a thousand places. And the greatest of all our tormentors is remorse, the relentless.

But even were this punishment not in store for us, what benefit do we get from the questionable transaction? Perhaps a little temporary advantage, but what does that amount to when weighed in the scales with the things we have lost to get it?

There are things in this world above price, and the greatest advantage one could imagine would not be worth considering if any of them were to be given in exchange.

Life is what we make it. Its ease and comfort, its pleasures and its joys must be of our own creation. And none of the worth-while things can be enjoyed if we have engaged in unprofitable traffic of any sort.

KATHERINE KIP.

Little increase of Spaniards. The population of Spain has increased in the last 45 years by only 3,000,000.

OUR FIRST HAT. May 24.—If the men folks were as clever as the women, the former would be the ones to be wearing the classy hats. They have been at it longer. The first male sky-piece was made and shown by a Swiss manufacturer on May 24, 1401. It was a woven affair and was not intended for anything but utility. But the new tie caught on and has been going ever since, where a man had the price. The custom of covering the head, however, is an old one. When the Phrygians invaded Asia Minor they adopted a head covering to distinguish the victor from the vanquished. The first hats of modern times were all made of beaver, to be in turn followed by the silk topper when the beaver became too expensive. Then came the straw and with it the chance for the ladies to get busy. They went the men one better and then some, till now there is enough raw material in a well grown woman's hat to shelter the whole community. Kosuth was responsible for the introduction of the soft hat into the United States, as he didn't have anything else to wear when he visited us in 1809.

When frost has stolen in at night And covered all the earth with white, Then Willie, in the morning light, Goes tramping to the woodland bright. The neighbor's boy he stops to get—Alas, he hasn't eaten yet!

The arms are full six inches long. As he goes whistling at a song! Now down the path he speeds along To join the butterflying throng. The neighbor's boy he stops to get—Alas, he hasn't eaten yet!

While Johnnie hustles through his meal, Bill talks about the quest with zeal—Then straight to where the woods appeal They trudge toward their nutting goal. Across each huddle's sturdy back Is twined a specious gummy sack.

All day they scamper to and fro Beneath the trees where harvests grow! But homeward bound, the nuts are slow—'Tis winter, then, nuts are heavy, though! That night before he goes to bed The nuts are spread upon the shed.

And now for days when callers come To "Wink" chewing on his gum, Extends four fingers and a thumb And points at his grinning chum, Says: "I am stained much worse than you—It's way down in my windpipe, too!"

Talk To Housekeepers

By Nellie L. Horn.

Now that strawberries have come down in price and up in quality, the housewife of moderate means is concocting many delectable dishes without hurting either her own conscience or the digestion of herself and her family.

The strawberry huller, a simple little contrivance which sells for five cents, lessens the labor of hulling, and saves the appearance of fingers and nails.

Of course every one knows how to make strawberry short cake, but not every one knows that it can be mixed and out in the pans in the morning, set in a cool place, and baked in the evening, regardless as to whether you use shortening or baking powder. You will find this very convenient, especially when you are entertaining company.

The tenderest short cakes with the crispest crusts are made with hard water in preference to butter and milk, and are mixed and put into the tin with a knife in preference to using the hands and the rolling pin and mixing board. Most of the hotels and restaurants make individual short cakes, and I have found them far superior to the large ones for family use also. Bake them in rather deep gem tins, and you will find them much easier to split and much prettier to serve than the usual large cakes. If you have some of the short cakes left over, they may be reheated by dipping them in cold water and putting them in the oven for a few minutes.

Another delicacy which the family will enjoy is strawberry dumplings. Sift together two cups of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, and one and one-half teaspoons of baking powder; into a bowl. Add enough water to make a soft dough, and roll out about half an inch thick. Cut into rounds the size of a saucer, and on each lay six or eight berries with a sprinkling of sugar. Bring the edges up together, and pinch firmly. Lay them closely together in a greased pan and steam them for half an hour. Set in the oven for a few moments to dry, then serve at once with a hard sauce into which has been beaten as many crushed berries as can be added without curdling the mixture.

FIRST SMOKER WAS DECIDED SUCCESS

INDUSTRIAL AND COMMERCIAL CLUB HAVE INTERESTING SESSION LAST EVENING.

PLAN OTHERS LATER

Monthly Gatherings of the Members Will Be Held in the Future to Discuss Matters of Interest.

With the spirit of harmony apparent, a desire to get the best results possible for the city out of concerted action, the Industrial and Commercial Club, held last evening at the Elks' club rooms, proved most successful. Some fifty members of the club, and invited guests, were present, and the talks and entertainments given during the evening were interesting to all.

A. P. Lovejoy, president of the club, presided, and brought to the attention of the club the question, whether or not it was not for the best interests of the city to give encouragement and material aid to the local factories instead of bidding for outside manufactures to locate here. He believed that the present unsatisfactory condition of the business world would make it more practical to aid the home industries than seek to bring new ones here to locate.

In the course of his remarks he touched upon the new amusement park of the Park Association, and cited it as one of the signs of awakened public spirit of co-operation of all the elements of the city to get together and boost, and then called upon Mayor John C. Nichols to give an address.

Mr. Nichols is president of the new Park Association, and he briefly reviewed the work of soliciting funds, and stated that he believed the Park Association would do much toward bringing new citizens here as well as the same money used to establish a new factory. The meetings of the association for horse and automobile racing, the possibility of the holding of a fair, he thought would attract the attention of the outside world to Janesville and induce many who came here to visit to remain as citizens.

As an illustration of the difficulties of starting up a new business, Mr. Nichols gave a resume of his own business endeavors in creating the successful enterprise he is the president of and which bears his name. He also stated that one of the most important needs of Janesville, in the factory line, was a millable iron foundry.

Mr. Ruben, one of the owners of the Cement Post factory, and a new member of the club, then spoke of his efforts to get some factory to locate in his building, and thought the failure to secure the Crombie Automobile company to locate here was a mistake. After he had concluded, Mr. Lovejoy explained the Crombie matter and the apparent lack of interest in the matter was due to the time the proposition was made, just after the efforts to locate the Monitor company here had taken so much money.

Frank E. Lane, the secretary of the club, was called on, and made a few remarks as to the work of the organization, particularly as to the work of adjusting the freight rates. He cited, as an example, that the condition here was deplorable in view of the fact that Rockford enjoyed a 29 cent commodity rate while Janesville paid 36.66. He explained his work in the rating bureau and also in the tables of freight rates which he has compiled and urged the shippers to co-operate with him and also to make use of the tables proposed.

Amos Rohrbeg, chairman of the special committee having in charge the changing of the electric lighting system down town, made a most interesting report showing how his committee had proceeded in the matter, and stating that the proposed lights could be installed for $130 per front foot, the cost to be divided between the merchants and property-owners. As many of the aldermen had expressed themselves as favorable to the project he thought that the matter could be adjusted.

During the evening Geo. McKay delighted the audience with a few cant and slight of hand tricks, George Baumann rendered a delightful mandolin solo and John Gollner gave a talk on the coming military celebration to be held here July 3rd, 4th and 5th, under the auspices of the United Spanish War Veterans and the Industrial and Commercial Club.

Mr. Gollner explained the proposed bond issue and the expectations that these bonds would be redeemed at fifty per cent of their face value, the subscription list now being in the hands of the committee on finance who begin their work today, and he hoped would be successful in raising the funds needed.

F. S. Sheldon, chairman of the retailers' association, organized last winter, talked on freight rates and the connection of the retailer to the traffic bureau of the club. He made a motion that the club make the matter of the equalization of the freight rates so far as Janesville is concerned, the present work of Secretary Lane. This motion was put to a vote and passed unanimously.

Andrew Gibson also made a few remarks on the rates and urged the members of the club to take advantage of the bureau for shippers established by the club with Mr. Lane, an expert in this matter, in charge. It was also decided to make the smokers a monthly affair and a special committee composed of J. C. Nichols, J. B. Humphrey, and Al. Schaller were appointed to take charge of the next session.

What He Had to Say.

"Prisoner, stand up. The jury has found you guilty. Have you anything to say before sentence is pronounced?" "Yes, your honor, I wish to say that the jury is a lot more intelligent than it looks. The verdict has proved that."

The Disputant.

True disputants are like true sportsmen, their whole delight is in the pursuit; and a disputant no more cares for the truth than the sportsman for the hare.—Pope.

He was unconscious for some time, but is today doing as well as could be expected.

The machine was the property of a friend who loaned it to Mr. Roscoe. The motorcycle had been standing in front of the saloon on South River street and Mr. Roscoe desired to learn how to run it. The friend showed him how it was operated and Mr. Roscoe started up North River street. His course at first was rather irregular, owing to his inexperience, but after turning onto Wall street he was traveling fast. He was unable to slow down the motor and when the corner of Wall and Locust streets was reached could not make the turn as the curve is quite abrupt. The motorcycle struck the curb and Mr. Roscoe was thrown off.

Walking Safe and Sane.

Taking it for granted that your heart is sound and normal, eight or ten miles' walk a day can only do a young man good; is the safest, sanest, best of all exercises, especially if the walker uses his powers of observation and thought on the way to cheer up and freshen brain, heart, appetite and nervous system. Forced long tramps for the mere glory of the thing are N. G.; are sometimes positively injurious. Walking should always take the form of a gay excursion, and not a stunt—where possible. Such walks are unusual these days, but long ago were everyday affairs, like hunting and sparring. One thing today is different; the roads are much harder; you know, in the old days there were no asphalt streets, gravel roads or other noisifying foot and leg killers. Every man ought to take one or two long walks a week and he ought to have three or four pairs of good shoes just for that purpose, so that while he is breaking in and softening up a new pair there are a couple of easy pairs to fall back on. Walking does not hurt the heart, and if there are no baggy veins or vein bags, walking hardly ever hurts a man.

Good Idea.
What a lot of time you would save if we could forget what others might say—but never do say.

Where Lord Byron Lived.

The late Lord Glenesk's house in Piccadilly, London, England, which is up for sale, has had several notable occupants, but none more notable than Lord Byron. Most of his brief and tempestuous married life was passed there, his daughter, Lady Lovelace, was born there, she was living there when he parted from his wife forever and in the library at the back of the house overlooking the stables—Lord Glenesk also used it as his library—he wrote "The Siege of Corinth." The apartment remains pretty much the same as it was in 1816.

There are several memorials of the poet in the house. His last stands in a recess in the overmantel of the entrance hall. There is an oil painting of him framed by the overmantel of the library and the secret stairs in the lobby at the back of the morning room are said to have been used by him as a means of gaining access unobserved through the still existing trapdoor to the room above. He used, it is said, the latter room as a bed-chamber, though in Lord and Lady Glenesk's time it was a drawing room.

Today and Tomorrow.
Happy men are full of the present, for its bounty suffices them; and wise men also, for its duties engage them. Our grand business undoubtedly is not to see what lies dimly at a distance, but to do what lies clearly at hand.—Edward Fitz Gerald, "Polonius."

Woman Not Warmly Clad.
Doctors have recently testified with rather an unusual degree of unanimity, that women in these days do not dress warmly enough; that neurasthenia is often the result of wearing clothing of insufficient thickness. It is not poverty, they say, but style, that causes the difficulty. Women cannot imitate the sylph-like maiden of the fashion plate and wear heavy underwear and thick dresses. Fashion, with beautiful disregard to the changing seasons, demands gauzy stockings, low shoes, décollete gowns and short sleeves. The result is too often pneumonia or an exhaustion of vitality and nerve force in the effort to keep warm. —Success Magazine.

Twenty Miles of Shaving.
Somebody has decided that the average man in his life shaves over 20 square miles of cheek. This is from the same source as the discovery of how many freight cars it would take to carry Iowa's crop, how far it is to Mars, how many angels could stand on the point of a cambric needle and how much it costs the average family to live.

The Right Spirit.
While I gaze out on the forest and hills and the beautiful sunlight, I want God's love to shine into my heart, as the sun shines upon the earth.—Tennessee Housewife.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—It's a wing-collar every time for Father, and don't you forget it

"The truest kind of courage, my girl. Now slip inside, but hold the door ajar. Hawley will certainly be here within ten minutes, and you must join him at once, or else the other might appear. You can judge as to its being him even in this darkness. Good-bye."

The longing to clasp her in his arms, to speak the language of his heart, was almost overwhelming, yet the memory of that figure blinking along behind them, and the brief time

"Yes, You Can Get Up. I Reckon You're Beginning to See Clearer, Ain't You?"

before Hawley's probable appearance, for he would leave the theater at the conclusion of Miss Macleire's act, restrained all demonstration. This was a moment for action, not for words of love; no delay should hazard the success of their undertaking. He heard the slight creak of the door as the girl slipped within the concealment of the vestibule, and then he glided away through the darkness with the stealthy silence of an Indian. There was no one in the alley-way, which was narrow and easily explored, but the glow from the front windows plainly revealed the shadow of a man near the entrance, and Keith slipped up toward him, hugging the side of the building for concealment, prepared to resort to harsh measures. As he reached out, gripping the astonished jolterer by the collar, they stared at one another in surprise, and the gripping hand was instantly released its hold.

"You, Fairbairn! What the devil does this mean? What are you spying on us for?"

Clearly taken aback, yet not greatly disturbed, his eyes showing pugnacious and his jaw set, the Doctor rubbed his throat where Keith's knuckles had left a red welt.

"Damn you, I think I'm the one to ask for an explanation," he growled. "She said she was not going with you, and now you are around here together at this hour. I had a right to know whether I was being played with like that."

"But, man, that was not Miss Macleire I was with; it was Hope Walter. Come back here under the tent flap while I explain."

Fearful of the coming of Hawley he fairly dragged the portly figure of the bewildered Doctor with him, striving, by quickly spoken words, to make him comprehend the situation. Knowing previously something of the issues involved, it was not difficult to make Fairbairn grasp the meaning of this present movement, yet his sympathies were at once enlisted upon the side of Miss Christie. He'd be damned if he would have any part in such a scheme—if she had a right to the money he'd help her get it—it was a cowardly trick, and he'd fight it necessary, to keep her from becoming a victim. His voice rose, his arms brandishing violently, his sentences snapping like rifle shots. Keith answered, and fearful of a discovery which would leave Hope exposed, realized the futility of discussion and turned to physical force. Grasping the gesticulating man with both hands, he flung him backward and dragged him into the empty tent, kneeling on him as he throttled him to the earth.

"Now, Doctor, you listen to me," he said sternly. "I'm through arguing. I hate to treat you like this, for you are my friend, but I'll not stand for interference here. Do you get that, you old fool? Lie still until I get through! I respect your feelings toward Miss Macleire. She is a good girl, and I hope to heaven you get her if you want her. But you never will if you permit this affair to go on. Yes, I know what I am talking about. In all that Hope and I do we are serving you and Christie—our only fight is with 'Black Bart' Hawley. Stop being a bullet-headed old fool, Fairbairn, and understand this thing. Lie still, I tell you, and hear me out! Hawley is a liar, a thief, and a swindler. There is a swindle in this thing somewhere, and he hopes to pull out a big sum of money from it. He is merely using Christie to pull his own chestnuts out of the fire. She is innocent; we realize that, but this fellow is going to ruin the girl unless we succeed in exposing him. He's not only involving her in his criminal conspiracy, but he's making love to her; he's teaching her to love him. That's part of his scheme, no doubt, for then she will be so much easier handled. I tell you, Fairbairn, your only chance to ever win the interest of Christie Macleire is to help us down this fellow Hawley. Yes, you can sit up; I reckon you're beginning to see clearer, ain't you?"

Keith drew aside the flap of the tent to glance without, the light falling on Fairbairn's face as he struggled to a sitting posture. He had had a new thought driven into him, yet failed to untangle its significance.

"Int. Jack," he asked, still half angry, "how about the girl? Haven't she any right to this money?"

"I don't know," honestly, "we don't any of us know, but whatever she has the right to she is going to get. You can bet on that, old man. We're backing Hawley, not Christie Macleire—get that into your head. He hasn't any right, that's certain, for he murdered and stole to get the papers—be quiet! Here the fellow comes now!"

They peered out together through the convenient tent flap. Fairbairn scarcely less interested than the other, already dimly comprehending that his truly dangerous rival was the gambler, and that he could best serve the lady by helping to prove to her the real character of that individual. He was still blindly groping in the haze, yet out of Keith's sharp, stinging words there had come to him a guiding light. The latter gripped his arm in restraint.

"Easy, old man, easy—let him pass."

Hawley turned into the alley while, evidently well pleased with the situation and anticipating other delights awaiting his coming. The glow of the Trocadero's lights served, an instant to reveal his face, shadowed by the broad brim of his hat, and then he vanished into the dark. Keith loomed far out, yet keeping well within the shadows, heard the faint creak of the vestibule door and the soft murmur of distant voices. Then he drew back suddenly, his hand again grasping Fairbairn. Two figures—those of a man and woman—emerged into the dim light, and as quickly disappeared. Apparently her hand was upon his arm, and he was bending down so as to gain a glimpse of the face partially concealed by the folds of the mantilla. Only a word or two reached them, a little laugh, and the woman's voice:

"Why, of course I hurried! you said you had something of such importance to tell me."

"Fairbairn," spoke Keith, his lips almost at the ear of the other. "That was Hope, all right! And she has got him going already. Now, man, will you help us out?"

"If I how?"

"Go back there, and meet Miss Macleire. I don't care where you take her—lunch, anywhere; only keep her from the hotel as long as possible. You can do it far better than I, for she will not suspect you of any interest in this affair. Tell her any lie you can think up on account of Hawley's absence. Good Lord, old man, can't you see this is your chance; go in and win!"

Fairbairn struggled to his feet, still a bit dazed and uncertain, yet tempted by the opportunity.

"You're perfectly sure, Keith, this isn't anything that will hurt the girl?"

"Sure! Of course I am. It's just Hawley I'm gunning after. For God's sake, haven't you got that clear yet?"

"I reckon I'm an old fool, Jack," admitted the Doctor regretfully, "and when an old fool is in love he hasn't got any sense left. Anyhow I'll do what you want me to do. Where are you going?"

"To watch those others. There is no knowing what play Hawley might try to pull off, and I want to keep within gunshot of him. Hurry up, man; that vestibule door creaked just then."

He shoved him down the dark alley and dodged back himself across the front of the tent out into the street. There was a crowd of men in front of the Trocadero, but the couple he sought were nowhere in sight.

CHAPTER XXIX.

By Force of Arms.

With her heart throbbing fiercely, Hope clung to the outer door of the vestibule endeavoring to see a little of what was transpiring without. About her was dense darkness, and she dare not explore the surroundings. Healed could be heard, through what must have been a thin partition, the various distractions of the stage, shifting scenery, music, shuffling feet, voices, and the occasional sound of applause. The girl had nerved herself to the encounter with Hawley, but this waiting here in darkness and uncertainty tried her to the uttermost. If some one should venture out that way how could she excuse her presence or explain her purpose? She found herself trembling in every limb from nervous fear, startled by every strange sound. Would the man ever come? Surely Christie herself must be ready to depart by this time.

Almost prepared to flee before the terrors thus conjured up within her mind, they left her as if by magic the moment her straining eyes distinguished the approach of a dim figure without. She could not tell who it was, only that it was the unmistakable form of a man, and that he was whispering softly to himself. It might not prove to be the gambler, but she must accept the chance, for flesh and blood could stand the strain of waiting no longer. Yet she was not conscious of fear, only of exultation, as she stepped forth into the open, her blood again circulating freely in her veins. At the slight creak of the door the man saw her, his whistle ceasing, his hat lifted. Instantly she recognized him as Hawley, her heart leaping with the excitement of encounter.

"Why, hullo, Christie," he said familiarly, "I thought I was early, and expected a ten minutes' wait. I came out as soon as you left the stage."

"Oh, I can dress in a jiffy when there is any cause for hurry," Hope responded, permitting herself to drift under his guidance. "Are you disappointed? Would you prefer to commune with nature?"

"Well, I should say not," drawing her hand through his arm, and then patting it with his own. "I have seen about all I care to of nature, but not of Christie Macleire."

"You may learn to feel the same regarding her," Hope answered, afraid to encourage the man, yet eagerly fearful lest she fail to play her part aright.

"Not the slightest danger," laughing lightly, and pressing her arm more closely against his body. "Although I must confess you exhibited some temper when I was late to-night."

"Did I not have occasion to? A woman should never be kept waiting, especially if her engagement be imperative."

"Oh, I am not finding any fault, you little spit-fire. I like you all the better because you fight. But the trouble was, Christie, you simply jumped on me without even asking how it occurred. You took it for granted I was late on purpose to spite you."

"Well, weren't you?" and the girl glanced jauntily up into his face.

as they passed out of the alley into the light of the Trocadero's windows. "You certainly acted that way."

"No, I did not; but you wouldn't listen, and besides I had no time then to explain. There's a lot happened this afternoon I want to tell you about. Will you give me time to talk with you?"

"Why, of course," surprised at the question, yet full of eagerness. "Why should you ask that?"

"Because I want you alone where no one can overhear a syllable. I'm afraid of that damned hotel. You never know who is in the next room, and the slightest whisper travels from one end to the other. That is one way in which Keith got onto our deal—he had a room next to Willoughby and Scott, and overheard them talking. I'm not going to take any more chances. Will you go to 'Sheeny Joe's' with me?"

She drew back from him.

"Sheeny Joe's?" You mean the saloon near the depot?"

"Sure; what's the use of being so squeamish? You sing and dance to a saloon crowd, don't you? Oh, I know you're a good girl, Christie, and all that. I'm not ranting you with these fly-by-nights around here. But there's no reason that I can see why you should shy so at a saloon. Besides, you won't see any one. Joe has got some back room where we can be alone, and have a bite to eat while we're talking. What do you say?"

"Oh, I would rather not," Hope faltered, bewildered by this unexpected request, already half-tempted to break away and run. "Really I—I don't want to go there."

Hawley was evidently surprised at this refusal, naturally supposing from her life that Miss Macleire's scruples would be easily overcome. This obstinacy of the girl aroused his anger. "You women beat the devil," he ejaculated, gruffly, "pretending to be so damn particular. Maybe you'd rather stand out there on the prairie and talk!" with a sweep of his hand around the horizon.

"Yes, I would," catching desperately at the straw. "I'm not afraid of you; I'm not blaming you at all, only—I don't want to go to 'Sheeny Joe's.'"

Gone is Age of Sentiment.

Among the out of date warships to be sold at Toulon by the order of the French government are the armor-plated Magenta and Admiral Baudin, the cruisers Milan and Pascal and three submarines, Lutia, Gymnote and Gustave Zede.

The Lutia was the little submarine which sank off Bizerta roadstead in 1900, drowning two officers and fourteen men. She was raised and brought to Toulon, but left in the arsenal unrepared. The Gustave Zede and the Gymnote are the two earliest submarines of the French fleet, dating from 1888 to 1889. Both were in active service for over twenty years.

It seems a pity that they should be broken up for old iron instead of being preserved as historic relics, particularly the Gymnote, the first boat to navigate under water and the first to torpedo an armored—In 1901, in the roadstead of Ajaccio.

The Young Man's Tact.

The man who was having his picture taken in the photograph gallery was an innocent listener to this conversation between two young ladies on the other side of the screen:

"You know, Kate, I sometimes want a long curl hanging down the back of my neck?"

"Well, when Phil was calling on me the other evening he asked me if he might have that curl, and I jokingly said yes. Before I knew what he was about he had taken a little pair of scissors out of his pocket and clipped it off, close to my head."

"Why, the ideal! Didn't that make you furious?"

"Not for the smallest fraction of a second. I thought it was splendid of him that he didn't seize it and pull it off."—Youth's Companion.

HAPPY RESULTS

Have Made Many Janesville Residents Enthusiastic.

No wonder scores of Janesville citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make anyone happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Janesville by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Frank C. Samuels, 359 McKay Ave., Janesville, Wis., says: "I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are a good kidney medicine, having used them with the best of results. My kidneys did not do their work as they should and caused my back to ache. I also had pains across my loins. The use of two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills a few months ago relieved me and since then I have no further trouble from kidney complaint."

The High Cost of Living Reduced

Much has been said about the high cost of living, its causes, and the possibilities of its reduction. But little has been said about the most costly leak; the false economy existing today in nearly every household.

Much foodstuffs are bought with but one point in view; "How cheap can I get it?" without a thought of quality or "after cost." One of the most serious is baking powder.

By the use of perfect baking powder the housewife can derive as much economy as from any other article used in baking and cooking. In selecting the baking powder, therefore, care should be exercised to purchase one that retains its original strength and always remains the same, thus making the food sweet and wholesome and producing sufficient leavening gas to make the baking light.

Very little of this leavening gas is produced by the cheap baking powders, making it necessary to use double the quantity ordinarily required to secure good results.

You cannot experiment every time you make a cake or biscuits, or test the strength of your baking powder to find out how much of it you should use; yet with most baking powders you should do this for they are put together so carelessly they are never uniform, the quality and strength varying with each can purchased.

Calumet Baking Powder is made of chemically pure ingredients of tested strength. Experienced chemists put it up. The proportions of the different materials remain always the same. Sealed in air-tight cans, Calumet Baking Powder does not alter in strength and is not affected by atmospheric changes.

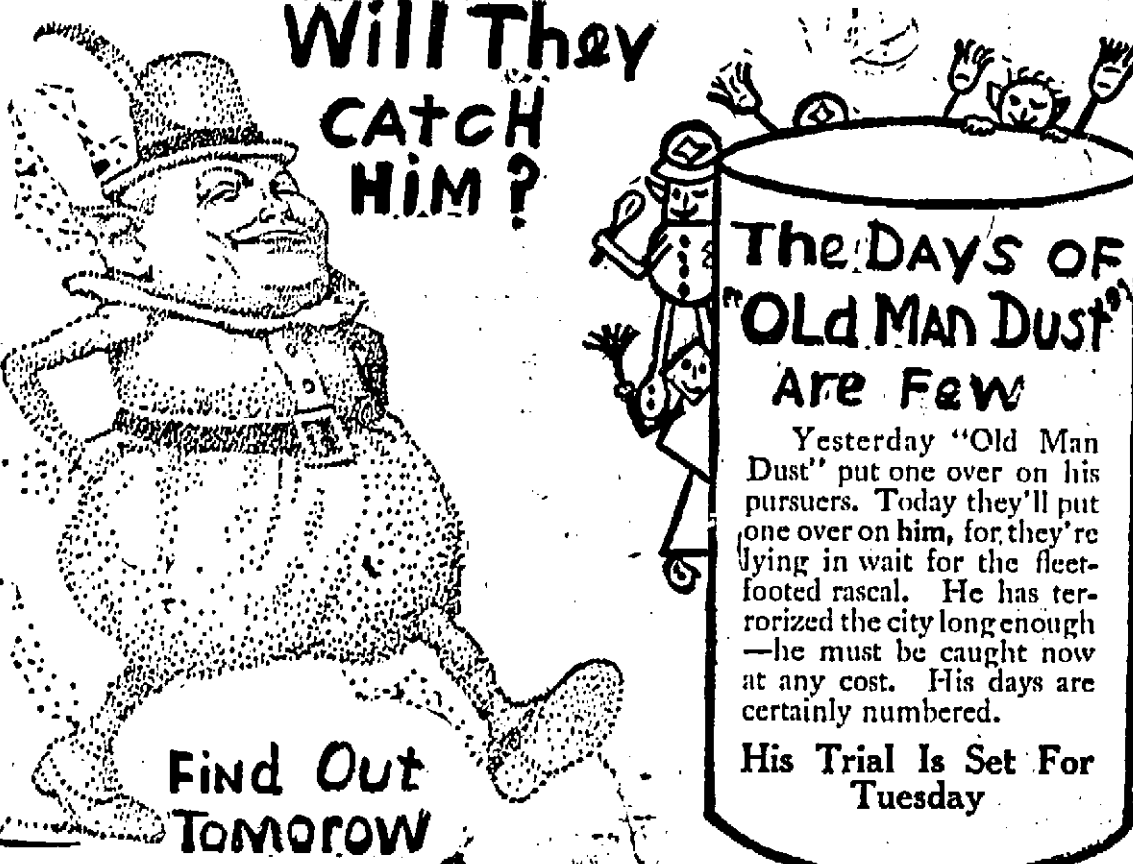

In using Calumet you are bound to have uniform bread, cake or biscuits, as Calumet does not contain any cheap, useless or adulterating ingredients so commonly used to increase the weight. Further it produces pure, wholesome food, and is a baking powder of rare merit; therefore is recommended by leading physicians and chemists. It complies with pure food laws, STATE and NATIONAL. The goods are moderate in price, and any lady purchasing Calumet from her grocer, if not satisfied with it, can return it and have her money refunded.

The manufacturers of Calumet a Baking Powder have just prepared a new edition of their handsome Cook Book, and will gladly mail it free to anyone who sends for it. In writing address the Calumet Baking Powder Co., Chicago, and ask for Cook Book "D."

Age of Fishes. Until within recent years there had been ascertained no trustworthy way of finding out the age of fish. It has been shown that more also does not indicate age. It is shown that many of the bones, scales and otoliths of fishes have annual age rings, resembling those in tree trunks.

In another class, of which poker is a notable example, brain, bluff and chance are mixed. Human happiness and success are of the poker type.—Collier's.

MEMORIES OF MUTINY

SCENES THAT RECALL HORRORS OF INDIAN OUTBREAK.

Massacre by the Treacherous Nana Sahib—Black Hole of Calcutta and Other Places of That Horrible Nightmare.

At Cawnpore was a large native garrison, and when they mutinied, Nana Sahib put himself at their head. The Europeans, including more women and children than fighting men, were besieged for two weeks, and then, trusting to a safe-conduct from Nana Sahib, they surrendered. They embarked on boats on the Ganges, the boats were set afire and shot at by the mutineers from both banks, and only four were escaped. The women and children were massacred a few days later, some of them being pitchforked living upon the bayonets of their murderers.

Bahadur was besieged for months from the surrounding hills, over which I have walked and driven, but was only, in September, that the British forces were driven in, and Nibbalson fell at the head of the storming party.

The chief commissioner of Oudh was a Lawrence, and not a Lawrence for nothing. He prepared for a siege in the residency at Lucknow, and was mortally wounded there, but his intelligent provision saved his companions till at last Lucknow was relieved.

It is one of the ghastly nightmares of history to see that Black Hole of Calcutta, that well at Cawnpore, that cellar in the residency at Lucknow, that grave-digger's ridge at Delhi. Women and children outraged, suffocated, pitchedforked on bayonets, burnt, stabbed, starved and strangled; it is a horrible tale. Say what one will of all that, it is British business, British vengeance, not ours, but it is a disgrace to the whole white race that British callousness and lack of taste and reverence, should permit these graves to be overgrown with weeds, should suffer that miserable little graveyard on the ridge above Delhi, should allow the lettering on the Kashmir Gate to become defaced. The only monument in all India that is not a travesty is the statue of John Nicholson, and more than one of the statues of the white empress and the white emperor of India are black—From "Mughal to British," by Price Collier, in Scribner's.

Life Saving Contests for Miners.

Miners from all parts of the country attended the second annual inter-company meet of first aid teams held recently at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., under the auspices of the National Red Cross society. United States army officers acted as judges in the contests in which various teams demonstrated their skill in rescuing miners under most difficult conditions.

An air-light mine chamber was built in an open field for the contests and charged with various kinds of fumes, such as are met with in coal mines, and it was in this that the first aid teams did their rescue work, completing their task of restoring the rescued men out in the open air.

Teams from the Lehigh Valley Coal company, Pennsylvania, Hillside, Temple and Delaware, Lackawanna and Western competed in the events, which were in charge of Maj. Charles Lynch of the United States army.

For the first time in the history of the movement there was a display of first aid work by engineers from the government experiment station at Pittsburgh.

How the Spirits Spell.

"Judging by spiritistic communications I have received lately simple spelling must be more popular in the world beyond than it is in this," said a man who patronizes mediums. "Half the messages received from the spirit land nowadays are spelled in a way to bring joy to the hearts of the simple spellers. Not one medium, but many, transmit them thus. Mediums who know the old-fashioned spelling book well enough to spell down a whole room full of folks have gone over to the revised edition.

"Whatever force it is that guides their hands when transmitting messages must be impressed with the utility of the new system. At the last séance I attended I received a communication from a man who fought new-fangled spelling with his dying breath, but since he passed over he must have learned something to make him change his mind, for he now writes like a disciple of Artemus Ward."—New York Times.
